THE DESCENDANTS OF ISAAC DENISON

ISAAC DENISON was born in Stonington, Conn., April 23, 1778. He was a descendant of Capt. George Denison, who came from England in 1645 and settled in Stonington.

Isaac Denison, when about fifteen years old, came to Ludlow, Vt., with his father, Elisha Denison. He attended the district school (which was his only chance for an education) and mastered the English branches sufficiently to become a successful teacher. On October 21, 1798, he married Electra Newell, who was born in Farmington, Conn., September 10, 1780, in Tinsworth, Vt. She was the daughter of Daniel and Nancy Curtis Newell.

In the spring of 1799 they moved into the town of Burke, Caledonia County, Vt., and settled on a hill in the western part of the town, where they commenced a pioneer life, full of hardships and privations. There were no good roads, most of the travel being on horseback. Religious services were held four miles distant, and they were as constant as possible in their attendance. Eleven children were born to them, five boys and five girls reaching adult age and marrying from the old home.

Children:—

Nancy Curtis married T. O. Brown of Norway, Me.

Almira married Silas Gilkey of Vershire, Vt.

Lucius married Katharine Bemis of Lyndon, Vt.

Nathan married Sila Stoddard of Sutton, Vt.

Rebecca married Alonzo Bemis of Lyndon, Vt.

Minerva married Edwin Fisher of Burke, Vt.

Adna C. married Hannah True of Sutton, Vt.

Oscar Alanson married (1st) Mary Evans, (2d) Adaline Stoddard, (3d) Lydia Putney.

Isaac A. married Laurestine Bemis of Lyndon, Vt.

Rosalia married (1st) Harley M. Hall, (2d) N. P. Bowman of St. Johnsbury.

In 1852 Mr. Denison moved to Norway, Me., to be near his three sons, who were in business in that place. He died January 9, 1867, in Norway, his wife surviving him only three years. She died in Burke, with her youngest daughter, Mrs. Harley M. Hall, August 22, 1870.

Isaac Denison was an honest, upright, reliable man, hospitable and generous, as many a fatherless boy could testify. He served the town in many ways—as selectman, town clerk, overseer of the poor—but it is, after all, as a kind father, a generous friend and an upright citizen that he is best held in remembrance. He and his wife were charter members of the first Baptist church organized in Burke. They are buried in Pine Grove Cemetery, South Paris, Me.

NANCY CURTIS DENISON

NANCY CURTIS DENISON was named for her grandmother, Nancy Curtis Newell. She was educated at the common schools and at Concord Corner, where Prof. Reed Hall and Eliza Dascomb were teachers. Soon after her marriage—November 13, 1827—to T. O. Brown, they removed to his home, Randolph Hill, where they kept a hotel for several years. A very sad accident occurred while they were living here.

Being a little short of sleeping rooms, they had a swing bed in the sitting room which Mr. and Mrs. Brown occupied. One morning, having a number of teamsters to get breakfast for, they arose very early, Mrs. Brown going to the kitchen to assist the girl about breakfast, leaving her three months' old baby sleeping in the bed. Soon the girl went into the sitting room to tidy it up, and not thinking of the little one, swung the bed in place. Mrs. Brown coming into the room soon after, saw the bed in position, exclaimed, "Oh, my baby!" and fell fainting to the floor. Mr. Brown came at once to the rescue, but the little life had gone out and the mother's heart was nearly broken by the sudden bereavement.

From Randolph they removed to Grey, N. H., from there to Norway, Me., where he spent the remainder of his life. Nancy, his wife, died September 6, 1861. He died April 2, 1878. They are buried in Pine Grove Cemetery, South Paris, Me.

1846. Harley, the seventh son of Sylvester and Lucy Hurlburt Hall, was born in Burke, Vt., August 8, 1818, on the farm where his father settled on coming from Connecticut in 1804. In 1842 he and his brother, Harris, entered into a copartnership, taking the old home farm, paying off accumulated debts and caring for their father and mother. They were industrious farmers, making a specialty of fine horses, Devon cattle and Cotswold sheep. Harris died May 9, 1865. This was a great blow to Harley, as they were very devoted to each other. Harley represented the town in 1858-9, and was Senator from the county in 1868-9. In the fall of 1874 he had a severe sickness, from which he never fully recovered. He died October 6, 1878, of strangulated hernia, after a brief illness of only four days. His funeral was attended at his home, where people from all parts of the county assembled to pay their last tribute to one whom they honored and respected.

In May, 1867, Mr. and Mrs. Hall took into their home little Minnie Belle Williams, who was born in Craftsbury, Vt., September 8, 1863, and gave her the name of Minnie Belle Hall.

They were married in Burke by a Methodist minister, Rev. Mr. Hoyt. After he had pronounced them man and wife he took from his pocket a large bandana handkerchief, spread it on the floor very deliberately, knelt upon it and asked God's blessing on the newly wedded pair. The prayer must have been heard and answered, as they were a very happy couple. They went directly to Vershire, Vt., lived there eight years, and then moved to Charleston, Vt. He went into the mercantile business for ten or twelve years, when he moved to Burke, Vt., where he died April 7, 1847. LUCIUS DENISON

LUCIUS DENISON, oldest son of Isaac and Electra Denison, was born July 27, 1803, on the West Hill, in Burke, Vt. His education was acquired at the district school and Peacham Academy, where he went with DeSelim Newell, an uncle of about his age and a life-long friend. Soon after coming of age he bought a farm of one hundred acres near his father, on which he built a good house and barn. On November 24, 1827, he married Catherine Bemis, who was born in Lyndon, Vt., October 24, 1805,—a very estimable woman. They at once commenced housekeeping in their new home. The winter after his marriage a neighbor who was clearing some land told him he might have all the wood he would cut and draw. He gladly availed himself of the offer. One day about 2.30 P. M. a man passing his home as he was driving into his yard with an oxload of wood told him that a fox had just crossed above his house. He at once took his dog and gun and started in pursuit. A little before dark he returned with two foxes. His good wife in the meantime had unyoked the oxen and put them in the barn. In 1831 he moved to Burke Hollow and went into trade with Daniel Beckwith. A few years later he and Alonzo Bemis bought of Joel Trull, senior, his house and store and began keeping a hotel in connection with the store, under the firm name of Bemis and Denison. Burke Hollow was then the principal village in town. He was postmaster many years, the mail coming into town only twice a week. On December 11, 1841, his wife passed away. In 1842 he married Adaline Hobart. In 1853 he moved to Island Pond for a short time, thence to Boston, where he went into the grocery business. In 1861, he removed to Norway, Me., and went into the dry goods business with his brother, I. A. Denison. He died June 26, 1882, and was buried in the cemetery at Norway. His wife outlived him just nine years to a day.

The following obituary appeared in a Portland paper:

E. B. DENISON

A few words relative to E. B. Denison cannot be out of place. Mr. Denison was a citizen whom Portland can ill afford to lose. An upright, quiet and modest man, he filled a position of usefulness in the community far more important than that of many who make themselves more conspicuous publicly. His integrity and sound business ability won for him the respect of all who came in contact with him. There is no position among men where a man can accomplish more for other men than that of the head of a large industrial business. The captain of industry in a future not far distant is to stand in the first rank of the world's benefactors. A well-known financial man said of Mr. Denison: "I have never known but one or two men who after failing in business and settling with creditors at a percentage, afterwards when successful paid in full with interest, but this is what Mr. Denison did." The remarks of citizens when his death was announced show the esteem in which he was held by all. Said a large manufacturer, "He was one of the best men I ever knew." Said another, "He was a first-class man in every respect," and another, "He was a man of most lovely character." To win universal approval is better for a man than the possession of titles.

NATHAN DENISON

NATHAN DENISON, second son of Isaac and Electra Denison, married Sila Stoddard, April 12, 1830. She was born in Sutton, Vt., January 5, 1807. He settled on a farm south of his father's, where he lived eleven years. In September, 1835, he was baptized by Rev. Jonathan Woodman and united with the Baptist Church at East Burke, Vt. Soon after this he felt called to preach the gospel and thinking his education not equal to such a calling, he disposed of his farm and with his little family removed to the town of Derby and entered the Derby Seminary, then in its infancy (1841). While studying he preached at East Charleston and Salem. He was ordained at Derby, February 24, 1842. He read the hymn beginning, "Jesus, I my cross have taken, all to leave and follow thee." During the first year of his pastorate in Derby he baptized twenty-two persons—one of whom became a minister. From Derby he went to Hardwick, from there to Skaneateles, N. Y., from which place he removed to Mendota, Ill., October, 1854, where he died November 31, 1854.
